

This is a detailed topographic map of the Worms region in Germany. The map shows the city of Worms at the top, with the Rhine river flowing through it. To the south of Worms is the area of Bobenheim-Roxheim, where a red bullseye symbol marks the site of the atomic bombing on September 18, 1945. Other locations shown include Sandhofen, Sandtorf, and various smaller villages and districts. The map includes road networks (e.g., B 9, B 44, AS 22, AS 23, AS 24), railway lines, and green spaces. The map is oriented with North at the top.